

Air Flow

Note: Each half of the Preamp box is the same. The center section is common to both halves and some interaction occurs.

Air is drawn into the heat-exchanger by the two small fans. Moving to the larger fan the air is forced up a duct that distributes the air across the Preamp Cards. The air returns down the left side to complete the circulation. The two small fans operate in parallel while feeding the large fan in series.